The Other Film Festival Producer

Welcome to The Other Film Festival 2018! I am honoured to be part of the Arts Access Victoria team presenting an invigorating disability led Festival program. We want you to be challenged and transported through original and untold stories!

Our aim is to present a visionary local and international screening program of an inclusive society where Disabled and Deaf communities are at the centre of the storytelling – not marginalised, imitated or spoken about.

Throughout the Festival explore how the diversities of lived experience and disability arts culture can inform the development of story ideas and creative practice for the screen. It is deeply painful to not see yourself reflected back in the world, whether in life or art and of course on our screens. The Other Film Festival offers a fully accessible platform to counter the stereotypes prevalent in popular culture and allowing space for authentic representation and storytelling.

It is exciting to be part of the growing conversations and programs for diversity and inclusion in film and television. The Other Film Festival will continue to be at the centre, advocating for deeper understanding of the rich talent and experience of people with disability. This includes paid employment opportunities and career pathways for screen practitioners and performers with disability. Gone are the days where it is acceptable that people with disability will be largely unseen, misrepresented and under-employed by the mainstream. There are many ways to tell stories and make screen work and we encourage the screen sector to continue to embrace inclusive production structures and processes.

Over three days at The Other Film Festival, experience where disability arts culture and the screen sectors meet. Celebrate the now and find out how to be part of an exciting future for disability led screen work. To help place the festival in a wider critical screen context, this year we have a series of commissions by writers with disability. We want to start new conversations and invite you to reflect on what you experience at the festival.

Sally Capp
Lord Mayor

The Other Film Festival (TOFF) is Australia's leading international disability film festival, showcasing stories of people with disabilities from Victoria and around the world.

Get ready for three days of disability-led screenings, talks, industry panels and workshops, all designed to foster the rich talent and experience of people with disabilities. This festival is a wonderful opportunity to enter a world where the voices of people with disabilities are at its centre.

The City of Melbourne has been a proud supporter of TOFF since 2004. We want all Victorians to participate in our vibrant screen industry, as creators, performers, consumers and critics, and this festival highlights some of the exciting and ground-breaking work being done by Victorians with disabilities.

This year, TOFF is based at Beckett Theatre in Southbank, along with Nebula, Arts

Access Victoria's fully-accessible portable arts space. I congratulate the organisers in bringing together a fantastic program and give my best wishes for a successful event.

Andrew Abbott,
The Victorian Government

The Other Film Festival is a trailblazing event that shares and amplifies the voices, stories and creativity of people with disability. It also sets a standard for universal access that all major creative events can follow. This year's festival offers an invigorating program of screenings, panels and workshops exploring the experiences of people with disability, and showcasing the rich talent of screen practitioners with disability from Victoria, Australia and around the world.

It provides an important forum for the disability and screen sectors to come together and explore ways to foster greater access and opportunities in our screen industry, for filmmakers with disability and audience members alike.

The Victorian Government is proud to support Arts Access Victoria and its important work across our state's creative industries. This festival is an example of its leadership and impact.

Congratulations to all participating filmmakers – of which more than half are from Victoria – and to the festival team for bringing this year's program together.

Michael Brealey,

Screen Australia, Chief Operating Officer

Arts, culture and particularly screen are powerful mediums for changing perception, challenging stereotypes and broadening our understanding. This is not just because of the stories we can tell but also because of how we imagine and portray ourselves and our communities.

The Other Film Festival is a wonderful example of how we can use our screen stories to celebrate and grow awareness of our diversity while also challenging our community's assumptions and the representations of people with disability in the media. Screen Australia is proud to be a long-time supporter of the festival for its thoughtful approach to representations of people with disability and because of the quality of the work it brings together.

Screen Australia is committed to promoting accessibility, inclusion and diversity through its programs and partnerships. The Other Film Festival provides a unique opportunity to discuss the issues facing people with disability within the screen industry, in front of and behind the camera, as well as in society more broadly.

Congratulations to the team on another great festival program bringing us fantastic cinema portraying the world simply as it is. Have a great festival.
